First year a big success for Slider new attractions planned for 1982

Close to 80,000 riders made this a very successful year for the Sky Slider in Haliburton Village. "We are really pleased," slide owner Steve Bowskill stated earlier this week. "Despite the wet weather during the summer months, the number of riders met our projections. It was a successful year."

The newest attraction in the Highlands proved to be such a success that Bowskill has plans to add further attractions next year and there is even a possibility the facilities might see limited use this winter.

"We are holding discussions with the manufacturers of the sled to see if there might be some modifications which could be made to adapt them for a bobsled type run," Bowskill stated. He said the manufacturers of the track have indicated that portions of the ride would not be damaged by winter use. "I was concerned about risking the track. I didn't want to use it during the winter, only to find that we have ruined it for the summer trade," Bowskill stated. He said that the makers of the double cement tracks that snake down the side of the hill have assured him the facility will stand up to the winter use.

At the moment the company which supplies the carts is examining the changes which would be necessary to enable them to run in the winter. Bowskill said that if a successful design could be made, the facilities at the Sky Slider site could be used on weekends during the winter months. "There is a 50/50 chance that we could be providing some activity for the winter months," Bowskill predicted.

Number of reasons

The owner of the attraction attributed the first successful year of operation to a number of things. "Basically what we have is a family attraction," Bowskill said. "It is good clean fun that everyone in the family can enjoy." He pointed out that the slide did not create competition for any existing enterprise. "We were an addition to the local business community that created an attraction for the Haliburton area. It gave more people a reason for coming to Haliburton and helped increase the awareness of the area."

The operation of the slide was also accompanied by a massive advertising campaign. "We invested over $50,000 in newspaper, television and radio advertising," he said. In addition promotional funds were spent on billboards, brochures and other vehicles to get the Sky Slider message across.

The slide also shared a promotional campaign with Coca Cola bottlers in various areas, with material promoting the slide being included with the soft drink.

"Despite the weather, which caused a lot of 'down' time for the slide's operation," the owner commented, "it has been a great year. I'm proud of the results and the employees here who were part of the success are equally proud of the effort." The ride employed 35 people at the

The Canadian Transport Commission has given its blessing to an application by Canadian National Railways to abandon the rail line between Lindsay and Haliburton. The decision favouring CN's request, was made public September 28 with copies of the material being made available locally of that material. Thomson noted the losses as submitted by Canadian National for the operation of the Lindsay-Haliburton line, and accepted these as being proper under the conditions of the Railway Act which allows certain costs to be assigned to all portions of the CN system.

Thomson said that shippers in the area could find access to other modes of transportation, some of which, like trucking, has replaced the service provided by the train several years ago. He noted that rail access would still exist at Bracebridge to the west and Lindsay to the south.

He said that any saving which could be realized through the use of trains in the years ahead, "which of course is presently unknown," must be weighed against the cost of maintaining the line until it becomes economical. He noted that it was the Canadian taxpayers who must carry the losses of the line.

"I am not convinced," Thomson's report stated, "either by the potential referred to above in the economic area, nor by the possibility of energy conservation, that the trucking last week.

The commission, in its decision, said the rail line was uneconomic and was likely to remain so. It also endorsed the figures submitted by Canadian National outlining the losses experienced on the line during the past five years. These ranged from $181,000 in 1975 to $196,013 in 1979. The CTC said it would be 35 days before the abandonment order became official. After that time the company would be permitted to remove the tracks and dispose of its assets in relation to the line's operation.

The decision of the commission endorsed the report of the hearings prepared by J.B.G. Thompson who served as chairman. The hearings had been held in Haliburton and Lindsay last September.

His report to the commission reviewed the evidence presented at the hearings and offered his own observations

Not profitable

In his assessment of the economic future for the rail line, an important point in the commissioner's estimation, Thomson noted, "No intervenor has satisfied me that the Haliburton line is profitable nor capable of being rendered profitable," his report stated. "Although

Warden says railway is still needed

the potential for growth in this area can in no way be discounted, there is nothing of a concrete nature presented at the hearing to indicate the line will ever become economic. In addition, even with improved marketing and increased traffic from as yet undefined mineral activities, it is not clear that this line could be mode cannot adequately serve the area in the future."

Economy will not be hurt

The CTC chairman said he was not concerned that the withdrawal of rail service from this area would have an over-all detrimental effect on the general economy. "In my view such fear is unfounded and the facts in no way indicate this will occur," the commissioner stated.

He noted that the Ontario government had made one of the strongest appeals for the retention of the line in calling for an over-all study of railway service in this part of the province. Thomson said he was sympathetic to this approach but he could not delay his recommendations any longer. "In my view it was up to the government of Ontario to present the commission with the study in question, prior to or at the hearing of the application or at the very least with some date for its completion."

The commissioner said he felt there was little possibility that future economic development would be hurt by the abandonment of the rail line. "I realize that such potential is difficult to assess, and that abandonment, once ordered is irreversible." The commissioner said he gave the evidence presented by the local delegations careful consideration. "I am not however, convinced that such potential justifies the height of the season. He commented that one statistic, which both he and his insurance company can note with satisfaction, was the fact that the slide operated throughout the season without a serious accident.

Local effort

Bowskill also attributed the ride's success to the co-operation and effort he had received from local individuals and companies. "On April 29 we turned the first sod for the project," he related. "The average time for constructing a slide like this is about 20 weeks. We did it in nine weeks and were open July 4." The initial opening of the ride took place without the chair life which takes riders to the top of the hill. That was in place and operating when the official opening took place July 18.

The weather also helped as early spring proved to be dry and conducive to the construction taking place. "I was more than pleased with the effort put out by local contractors," Bowskill commented. "Some were on the job 18 hours a day in an effort to get everything in place. Without this sort of backing from the contractors and their employees, there is no way we could have been ready when the summer season started."

New attractions

The success of this first season of operation will lead to the expansion of attractions at the site in Haliburton Village next year. According to Bowskill, one of the largest hot air balloons in Canada is being prepared for flying at the site. The balloon, which will carry a pilot and four passengers aloft, will be tethered at the location and available for rides.

"Three members of the staff and myself are taking balloon pilot lessons right now," Bowskill commented, "so we'll be ready to take people aloft when the season opens next year."

He said the balloon, which will cost close to $20,000, should be ready by the new year. It will be available for various functions throughout the Highlands and Ontario during the off season to promote the Sky Slider and attractions at Haliburton.

The balloon will lift the passengers over 200 feet into the air over the slide, giving them a panoramic view of the lakes and Highlands around the village.

Bowskill is also planning a number of other attractions for the site, but refused to reveal any details. He indicated that some are still in the planning stage while others are simply ideas which must be given further consideration before proceeding. Part of the process will include a trip to West Germany for Bowskill next month to attend a convention at which the latest ideas in attractions and rides are demonstrated.

However, the operator did indicate that the number attractions at the Haliburton site will be increased next season. "We believe in the Haliburton Highlands," he commented. "This area has become an important destination point for vacationers and we are willing to make the investment necessary to provide attractions to hold them here once they come to the area."

Still open

The success of the summer has spilled over into the autumn season as well. The Sky Slider was scheduled to close for the season Monday. However, the fine weekend weather has meant the attraction has been busy. "We had about 1000 people ride the slide Sunday," Bowskill pointed out and we expect as many again today (Monday)."

He said the facility would remain open as long as the weather allowed them to operate and the people were willing to ride it. "The close up may be a couple of weeks away yet," he commented.

Steam train is not lost yet says Skelcher

Ed Skelcher, one of the proponents of the steam locomotive excursion train between Lindsay and Haliburton expressed mixed reactions about the decision of the Canadian Transport Commission to allow CNR to abandon the rail line. Speaking from his office in Toronto, Skelcher said the decision could actually have a positive impact on his proposed use of the rail line.

"I had hoped for a positive decision on the retention of the line," Skelcher commented, "but there are a number of aspects which could benefit the excursion suggestion."

He pointed out that the fact the decision had been made cleared many of the roadblocks which his group had faced. Uncertain what was going to happen to the line, the group has spent more than a year cooling its heels waiting for the CTC to rule on the matter. Now that the decision has been made, Skelcher suggested his group can proceed.

Skelcher said he had held a number of discussions with CNR officials over the past year and claimed there was no plan on the part of the railway to tear up the tracks which are now in place. He indicated there may be a possibility that his group might be able to make use of the existing tracks once the CNR has abandoned it.

If the track came under the steam train group's control he noted they would be able to operate with their own schedule. He also pointed out that some of the stringent regulations, which would apply if CN retained control, could be eased. These included the proviso that only union personnel be used to man the trains.

Skelcher noted that there weren't many people in the industry who were qualified to operate steam trains. However, he hoped to draw on the expertise of retired engineers living in the Lindsay area to instruct new operators.

Skelcher said he felt the commissioner was offering some encouragement for the operation of the steam excursion under his group when Thomson commented in his report, "It is not clear to me that retention of the line is necessary for the implementation of the scheme in question." The steam train proponent said he felt the commissioner was saying that the operation of the train need not come under CTC control, leaving CNR free to abandon the line then make it available to the group for the excursion.

Skelcher was not certain whether such an operation would be allowed to carry freight. He said this would have to be a matter to be worked out with the CNR.

He said he was hopeful that a decision on the excursion might be made in the near future. Skelcher said he would be meeting with CNR officials, representative of the Ministry of Industry and Tourism and the Railway Retention Committee to discuss the options open to the group.

Warden wants decision appealed

Haliburton County Warden was "disappointed" when he heard the decision of the Canadian Transport Commission with regard to the abandonment of the CNR line. However, Murray Fearrey, who is also the Reeve of Dysart et al, where the rail line ends, suggested that an appeal should be launched before the 35 day period allowed by the CTC expires.

Fearrey said he felt the county and various other representatives had made a good presentation during the rail hearings here and in Lindsay. He expressed concern over the fact that a large area of the province will be left without access to rail service once the Haliburton line is abandoned.

Referring to what became known as the "Burtick Triangle" during the hearings, Fearrey said the over-all impact of the line abandonment must be considered, not just the local impact.

Mr. D. W. Burtick was a lawyer representing the Ontario government during the hearings last year. Using a map showing the eastern end of the province he pointed out that an area bounded by Ottawa to the northeast, Muskoka to the west and Lindsay-Bancroft to the south would be without rail service if the Haliburton line was allowed to close. The area, forming a rough triangle, was given the lawyer's name and is referred to in the commissioner's report by that name.

The Haliburton Warden also expressed dismay at the fact the intervenors were unable to "attack" the figures presented by the railway as their loss for the line during the past five years. Fearrey noted that under the Railway Act the CNR is allowed to assign certain costs to all its lines in the country. So that, when in fact only limited maintenance is carried out on a line that is hardly used, the company can still claim losses as high as $196,000 (1979). "We can't attack the figures," Fearrey stated. "The formula for assigning that cost per mile is part of the Railway Act."

Fearrey said he was hesitant to predict the outcome of any appeal that may be launched against the decision of the CTC. He indicated he would be looking to the province to carry the fight for an appeal. He said that the joint Haliburton-Victoria Counties Rail Retention Committee would be meeting sometime next week to discuss what response should be made to the commission's decision.

"We still have a need for that railway," the Warden commented. "We should pursue every avenue open to us for appeal before allowing the line to be abandoned."

CTC decision

retention of the line." He noted that suggestions of mineral potential in the area or the possibility of an expanding wood chip market overseas were not concrete enough to warrant the continued operation of the rail line.

Commenting on the possibility of a steam train excursion, which has been proposed between Lindsay and Haliburton, Thomson said he read the report prepared by the study group. However, he determined that the revenue generated from such an operation would not reduce the losses to CN for the line's operation. Thomson said he didn't believe that retention of the line by the CN was necessary to the operation of the steam excursion train.

CNR criticized

The commission criticized Canadian National for lack of effort in attempting to recruit business for the line in the past few years. He described the company's effort as "deficient" in this regard. "Perhaps more aggressive pursuit of the market could have improved matters to some extent, but it appears to me the track mode was more desirable to many shippers for a variety of reasons, not the least of which was cost."

In closing, Thomson noted the rail line formed an important historical link between Lindsay and Haliburton. "It has not escaped me that 1981 is the centennial birthday of this line and that my decision may be seen as a cruel irony to many persons of the area. However, such personal sympathy cannot, unfortunately, justify retention of the line in question."

Five injured in 2 car mishap

Five people were injured in a two car accident Saturday on Highway 519 near Dysart Township yard. The accident occurred at 1:15 p.m.

According to police, a car driven by Mary S. Riggs, 43, of Kingston, attempted to pass another northbound vehicle which was travelling slowly on the shoulder of the highway. As she passed the car, a third vehicle, travelling south and driven by Catherine Petrow, 24, of Mississauga, slowed. The Petrow vehicle started to swerve, narrowly missing the Riggs car but hitting the other northbound car. It was being driven by Dirkje Colclough, 27, of Scarborough.

The four occupants of the Colclough car sustained injuries, including a 14 year old girl, Sheila Spoor, who was taken to Peterborough Hospital with internal injuries. Other passengers in the car, 10 year old William Spoor of Etobicoke, 11 year old Connie McClure of Toronto and the driver Colclough, were treated for injuries at the Haliburton Red Cross Hospital. Catherine Petrow was also treated at the Haliburton hospital and released.

Damage to the Petrow vehicle was estimated at $2000 while the Colclough car sustained $6500 damage.

Motorcycle collision

A Toronto woman sustained serious leg injuries and was taken by ambulance to a Toronto hospital following a collision Sunday in Lutterworth Township.

Carole Buford, 32, was driving a motorcycle on a single lane cottage road near East Moore Lake when she collided head-on with a car driven by John Reynolds, 32, also of Toronto. He was not injured.

Police estimate that both vehicles sustained $550 damage.

Prank

Pranksters with a rather warped sense of humour created some concern for Gooderham area residents and the Ontario Provincial Police Sunday morning.

The police were called to this community around noon to investigate what residents reported as being a freshly-dug grave. The four foot by eight foot patch of freshly turned earth was located in front of the Gooderham post office. A marble tombstone, evidently removed from a local cemetery, was standing at the head of the "grave" with the initials R.I.P. and the name of the local youth inscribed on it.

Police are holding the tombstone at the Minden detachment office until they are informed where it had been taken from.

* Investigation is being carried out by Constable Brian Dunham.

One way to retain the rails

Few in the county were surprised by the ruling handed down last week by the Canadian Transport Commission although there were no doubt many who wished it would have gone the other way. Those who attended the hearings in September 1981, though showing a brave and determined front, realized that any fight to force CNR to maintain the rail line was an uphill battle.

Even though the rail company used what many feel were grossly inflated figures (as allowed under the Railway Act) to demonstrate their financial losses over the years, even though the CNR has done little to promote its own business in the area; even though the rail line between the two communities has received little in the way of serious maintenance over the years, there was no doubt the railway company had a good case for wanting to abandon the line. Shippers had transferred their business to other modes, little interest was shown in the future (until the CNR wanted to end it) and there seemed little reason to expect future growth to make the line economically sound in the near future as the hearings were told.

The evidence presented to Commissioner J.B.G. Thomas indicated only one course of action, allowing the railway to divest itself of a line which had fallen into disrepair and non-use. His decision reflects those facts.

However, all hope is not to be abandoned with the decision of the CTC. According to Ed Skelcher, a proponent of the steam train excursion between Lindsay and Haliburton, the fact CNR is being allowed to divest itself of the line may clear the tracks, as it were, for his idea. It could mean with proper support from provincial and county officials the steam excursion could become operational.

The option means more than an important boost to the economies of both counties with a potential influx of tourists. It means the tracks will remain in place and in use. The possibility of re-activating the line, should economic conditions warrant, will still exist, something which will be almost impossible to achieve if the rails are lifted and the trackbed sold.

If for no other reason than this, those who mounted an effort to see CNR retain control, should now support the steam train excursion proposal. It is the one last straw which could ensure the county retain its rail link with the rest of the country.

A disgusting display

Spectators, players and officials were treated to a disgusting display of vulgarity and poor sportsmanship Friday afternoon at the school football game. At a number of points during the game the coach of the visiting Lindsay team hurled verbal abuse at the referees, salting his comments with what is politely referred to as four letter words. At one point the referee was forced to ask the student captain of the team to tell the coach to curb his tongue or be ejected from the game.

For most of the students, they were not hearing swear words they hadn't heard before. However, it was dismaying to see someone in a leadership position, someone who, we imagine the players under his guidance would look up to, directing such a childish outburst at game officials. His actions encouraged several supporters, presumably from his high school, to emulate his actions.

Football is an exciting game. It is filled with tension for participants and spectators alike. However, at the high school level it shouldn't be a forum for vitriolic tirades as we witnessed from the Lindsay coach last Friday.

Province cuts university funding

- by John Eakins, M.P.P. -

This past summer, the government was told by its own advisory committee that it must either dramatically increase university funding or face the closure of several universities and the drastic curtailment of programmes at several other institutions.

According to the committee, the underlying problem is the government's failure to provide adequate funding for universities. For example, in 1977 the province paid 18% of the cost of the university programmes and support services. This year, the province will pay only 5%, with the federal government and student tuition paying the rest.

The current crisis in university funding is proving to be the main topic of discussion as Liberal Colleges and Universities Critic Bill Wrye tours eight university campuses this fall. The M.P.P. for Windsor-Sandwich is meeting with university presidents, student council leaders, students and faculty. At each stop on his tour, he is accompanied by local Liberal M.P.P.s.

Bill Wrye actually began his tour on September 25th, in his home riding at the University of Windsor, and to date he has also visited Trent University of Windsor, and to date he has also visited Trent University in Peterborough - on September 28th, and Carleton University in Ottawa - on October 5th.

On October 14th, he will visit Waterloo and Wilfred Laurier Universities in the Kitchener area. October 16th, he will visit Laurentian in Sudbury, and October 26th he will be at Brock University in St. Catharines. York University in Toronto will also be included in the tour, although the actual date of this visit is not yet finalised.

At each stop on the tour to date, it has been abundantly clear that the students and faculty alike are very worried indeed about the current funding situation. All agree that the "crunch" will come in the next financial year.

All three universities visited so far are running at a deficit and it is expected that the other universities on the tour will have similar tales to tell. We can only hope that the government will take effective action in this connection rather than compel some of them to go into receivership if the funding they receive is substantially less than the rate of inflation.

Economic problems must come first decision as to whether or not the federal government could legally patriate the British North America Act without the consent of the provinces.

Although the court ruled that the government could act alone in this matter, it also ruled that such a procedure would go against established tradition and convention and was therefore unconstitutional.

Predictably, both the federal government and the provincial premiers opposing unilateral patriation claimed victory in the court's split decision.

What the Supreme Court decision really means is that the question of patriation of the constitution has been thrown back into the political arena; back to Parliament and the provincial legislatures.

The court had been asked by eight of the provincial premiers to rule on two separate questions. The first was whether or not the federal government could patriate the BNA Act, unilaterally, along with a charter of rights and an amending formula. The court ruled that the government was within its legal rights to do so.

The second question was whether the federal government would be acting contrary to established tradition in Canada whereby constitutional changes were only made on the basis of federal/provincial consensus. The court ruled that unilateral patriation violated these traditions, and would therefore be unconstitutional.

Rather than to clarify the controversy surrounding the constitutional debates, the court decision creates still another area of confusion.

Six of the Supreme Court justices ruled that, even though the government can act unilaterally in a purely legal sense, a convention does exist that requires provincial consent to constitutional change.

The annual event drew 50 entries from throughout southern Ontario and attracted a large and enthusiastic crowd which cheered and roared with each crunching collision.

The $1000 first prize was claimed by James Grant of Mount Albert who also took home the Brown's Auto Wreckers trophy. Second spot and a $500 cash prize went to Wayne Greer of Lindsay, while Mark Brown of Brechin claimed the third prize money of $300.

Heather Brown of Brechin was the winner in the powder puff competition, winning $200 and the Dixie Lee cup. There were 12 entries in this competition.

In the consolation round, Bob Shepherd of Scarborough was the winner, claiming $110 in prize money. 22 cars managed to take part in the consolation rounds.

According to the organizers, this was the best weather the competition has enjoyed in the last five years. And the weather helped to attract a record crowd. While exact figures are not known, the competition area was ringed several deep and the grandstands were full when the aging four-wheel gladiators roared into the competition area.

Seven heats were needed to decide competitors for the championship round. The winners of each heat were: Dave DeRusha of Lindsay; Mark Brown of Brechin; Wayne Greer, Lindsay; Jim Gassien, Lindsay; Wendell Williams, Millbrook; John Grant, Mount Albert; and Karl Pfeiffer, Mountain Lake.

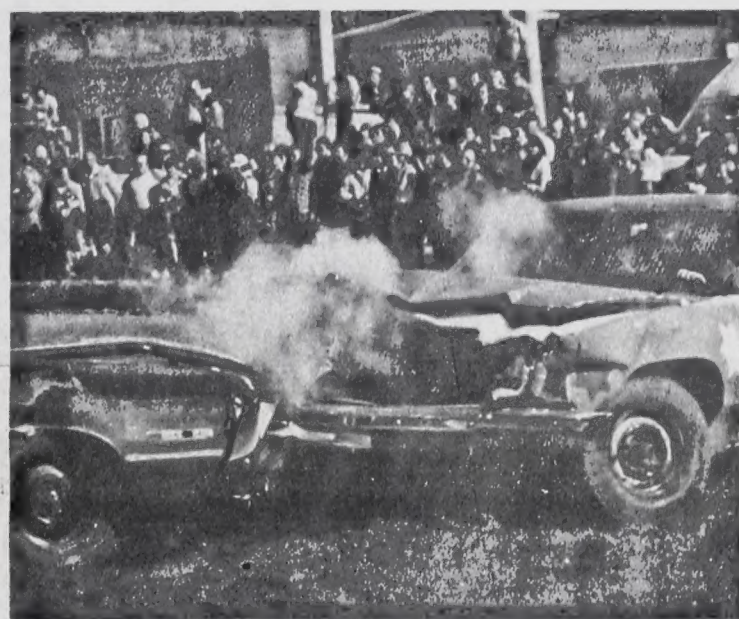

The photographs on this page offer a sampling of some of the activities at this year's demolition derby.

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

When word came this week that our local rail line from Lindsay to Haliburton was to be permanently abandoned it was certainly no surprise to many, but all the same a very real disappointment. When the hearing took place over a year ago there was quite a little optimism shown, particularly in light of the revelations that were made about how the C.N.R. had handled their end of the present agreement. The bottom line however is that "the branch line is uneconomic, and likely to continue to be uneconomic."

The C.N.R. received permission to take up and dispose of the tracks and equipment and got a light rap on the knuckles because "its attitude generally towards pursuit of new markets in the area were, in my view (the commissioner), deficient." That is certainly an understatement.

One hope for not only retaining the line but using it as a potential tourist attraction, was the proposed steam excursion train. In reference to this factor the commissioner in his summary makes a very puzzling statement. He says "It is not clear to me that retention of the line is necessary for the implementation of the scheme in question." How this proposed train could operate without a track is beyond us.

Inwats line discontinued
It is with considerable regret that the Chamber faced the decision to discontinue the use of the Inwats telephone service that began last March.

The Inwats phone number provided toll-free convenience to potential visitors from anywhere in Ontario to call the Chamber office. In order to pay for the cost of this service the Chamber had equipment installed allowing us to forward calls to members who subscribed to the service thereby allowing them to advertise a toll-free line also.

This is where the problem came in, as reception on the line was so poor when the calls were forwarded that at times it was impossible to hear at all. Bell Telephone technicians tried everything to improve this, without success. The only final solution was to admit defeat, suspend the service, and refund our expenses.

The idea was a good one and it received excellent response from those that subscribed to it. It appears that although we can put a man on the moon - and talk to him, we still can't always connect two parties on a telephone so that they can communicate. The Chamber sincerely regrets that we will be unable to continue with this service since without being able to service our subscribers we have no budget to continue with the Inwats line for the Chamber's use.

Acid rain battle

To finish this column with a note on the Acid Rain seems to be overdoing the number of depressing things that we should cover in one day. We must, however, take note of the overwhelming battle we have ahead of us in the U.S. according to an article in this week's Toronto Star.

Anne McGill Corsuch, the new administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency in Reagan's cabinet has been named "Miss Acid Rain" by environmentalists there. She has already cut $400 million out of the C.P.A. budget and is looking for ways to cut another $100 million. She wants to cut automobile emission standards to save $100 per car, and wants to allow polluting industries to operate in the few remaining areas of the U.S. where the air is still clean. She and the President agree that no one really knows what causes acid rain and says it would be premature to take any action.

To assist her in her destruction of the environment she has enlisted as key staff personnel seven lawyers who had previously represented such clients as G.M. and Exxon in combatting environmental regulations and as chief of staff she chose John Daniel, a lobbyist for the asbestos industry.

At the Chamber's Annual meeting on October 28 Michael Perley, executive director of the Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain will be speaking. He has promised to explain what we can do about this problem - hopeless as it may sound - and we certainly hope you will all be there to hear his message.

Federation of Ontario
Naturalists

Late this spring, it appeared that Ontario's Environmental Assessment Act had been undermined substantially, as a result of the belated exemption of the Highway 404 extension north of Toronto. But a successful private prosecution on behalf of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists has turned the 404 decision into at least a partial victory for environmentalists.

The controversy began when a botanist became concerned about the rare plants in a wetland beside the proposed highway, and requested a hearing under the Environmental Assessment Act. When he found that construction had already begun, without the necessary environmental approval, his objections created such a stir that the Premier temporarily stopped construction. The next day the Premier announced that the civil servants involved had been rebuked, and the project would be exempted so it could continue.

We were convinced that the Ministry of Transportation and Communications were simply testing the Act, to see how much they could shortcut its requirements. Since the Ministry of Environment refused to prosecute, we decided to try. It was clear that the Minister James Snow and his deputy Harold Gilbert had been the two officials who made the decision to proceed illegally, so these were the two individuals named in the charges.

The biggest hurdle turned out to be a hearing to persuade the Justice of the Peace to actually issue the summons. Much to our surprise the Ministry officials then decided to plead guilty at their first opportunity, thus avoiding a long and embarrassing trial. Even more to our surprise, the judge announced sentences of $3500 and $2800 for the pair, more than three times larger than the maximum fine we had requested.

Why did we prosecute, since the road construction continued anyway? Our motive was deterrence, as in most prosecutions where the damage can't be undone. We hope that the first conviction of an Ontario Cabinet Minister since 1923, and the stiff fines handed out for this first conviction under the Environmental Assessment Act, will send a message to all those in power that they ignore environmental legislation at their peril. The 404 case should tell them all that there are citizen groups prepared to prosecute and courts willing to convict.

Redmen defeat Lindsay 9-0

The Haliburton Highlands Redmen have stretched their winning streak to four games as they defeated Lindsay Collegiate Friday afternoon at the local high school. The final score was 9-0 for the Redmen and left them at the top of the high school football circuit with I.E. Weldon Collegiate of Lindsay, also undefeated in four outings this season.

Friday's encounter was the toughest competition the Redmen had faced this season. The teams see-sawed back and forth on the field, each coming close to scoring on a number of occasions.

Scott Arbuthnot scored the only touchdown for the Redmen, his marker coming in the first quarter. Other Haliburton points came off the boot of Tim Davies who converted the Arbuthnot T.D., scored a single in the second quarter and another in the final quarter.

"This Thursday we'll find out which team is tops in the league," coach Gary Brohman commented. He noted that both teams have an unblemished record and will be looking for the win.

The losers will have a second chance however, as the teams move back to Haliburton for a second engagement. This match is planned for October 23 at the high school field.

Members of the Haliburton Highlands and Lindsay high schools football teams struggle for the ball Friday afternoon. The Redmen maintained this winning streak and defeated the visitors 9-1.

Huskies plan 2 games in Minden

The Haliburton Huskies will be playing at least two of their home games at the Minden arena. The team officials have announced that a game in early December and second in early January have been scheduled at the local facility. The Huskies usually play their home games in Haliburton village arena.

According to one official of the team, the games are being played in Minden for a number of reasons. Many of the players on the team live in Minden and so the games here will give residents an opportunity to see them in action. As well, the Haliburton arena is booked for the weekends indicated, with hockey tournaments taking place, so the Minden arena offered a reasonable alternate venue for the games.

The two games scheduled so far for Minden are slated for December 6 and January 10. Both are Sunday games and will start at 4:30 p.m.

The Huskies lead the league after four games this season having won three and lost one. Attendance is also up over last year with the two home games attracting over 250 spectators.

Huskies still in first place

The Haliburton Huskies split a pair of games during the weekend but still retain sole possession of first place in the Georgian Bay Junior 'C' Hockey League.

The Huskies suffered their first loss of the season Friday evening at the hands of Oro. The final score was 5-2.

Scott Rae was the marksman for the Huskies, picking up both of the markers. Lorne Cooney and Glen Vollenquert each scored a pair for Oro while Steve Wiles scored the other goal.

Penalties proved to be costly for both teams as five of the seven goals were scored when the opposing team was short-handed. Oro outshot the Huskies 45-32.

Early lead

Back on home ice Saturday evening, the Huskies came out skating and notched three goals in the opening frame as they faced the Gravenhurst team. Ed Davis led the way for the Haliburton team scoring with just ten seconds having elapsed on the clock. His game opening effort was unassisted.

Tim Davies scored for the Huskies at 9:21 with assists going to Corey Walker and Dean Curry. Darrin MacInnes picked up the third Haliburton marker, scoring at 10:28 on a pass from Gary Harrison.

The new rule in the junior league requiring a player to sit out his entire two minute penalty, even if the opposing team scores, proved costly for both teams Saturday night. With Ian MacDonald of the visiting team in the penalty box, the Huskies were able to score two goals to lengthen their lead to five. Tim Davies scored at the 15 second mark on a pass from Ron Yake and Scott Rae. Forty-four seconds later, Ed Davis netted his second of the evening, scoring at the 1:01 mark on a pass from Scott Arbuthnot and Scott Rae.

Gravenhurst battled back in the second period to score two goals off the sticks of Andy Schell and Marsh Thompson.

Roger Hicks scored the sixth goal for the Huskies at the 3:54 point of the third period. Assists went to Tim Davies and Dean Curry.

At 7:09, Orchard scored for Gravenhurst.

The tables were turned on the Huskies later in the final period when, with Scott Arbuthnot serving a two minute penalty, Ted Lahay and Bob Maguire scored two goals to bring the visitors within striking distance. The Huskies were able to maintain the edge, however, until the final buzzer sounded.

The Haliburton team finds itself in an unfamiliar position early in this year's season as they have sole possession of first place. The team has a 3-1 win-loss record. Haliburton travels to Midland Friday evening and plays at home again Sunday afternoon when they face Penetang. Game time is 2:30 p.m.

The six justices said that, for the federal government to act against this convention would be unconstitutional and would offend the federal principle. They further added that, "some conventions are more important than some laws."

I stated in this column last June, at the height of the constitution debates, that the prime minister should set this issue aside and deal with the economic problems facing Canadians.

The present high rate of inflation, high interest rates, and the general decline in our national economy make it more important than ever that we in Parliament shelve the constitution debate and work out solutions to these economic problems. After we have eased the plight of Canadian homeowners, businesspeople and consumers, we can then approach the constitution issue in the cold light of reality.

Last Saturday, a close friend and former colleague in the House of Commons, Sean O'Sullivan, was ordained a priest in the Roman Catholic Church. Sean was the youngest Member ever to sit in Parliament, at the age of twenty, and it came as a surprise when he announced that he was giving up a very promising political career to enter the priesthood. All of us wish Father O'Sullivan a most fruitful and satisfying life in his new commitment.

Minden-Carnarvon Highland Senior Services report

The Minden-Carnarvon Highland Senior Services is an off-shoot of the Haliburton County Home Support Services funded by the New Horizons Group of the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa. The credit of its formation is due solely to the H.C.H.S.S. and its Chairperson (s), Mrs. Doris McCann and Mrs. Marie Wallace who originally appointed Mrs. Jane Graham as the co-ordinator for Minden and area and Mrs. Elsie Bursey as co-ordinator for the Carnarvon-Halls Lake area. They were responsible for organizing the "Meals on Wheels" program in their respective districts and under the direction of Mrs. McCann and Mrs. Wallace.

Through the efforts of the chairpersons of the HCHSS in arranging 'workshop' meetings was also born the "Wheels to Meals" program and these voluntary duties were assumed by Mrs. Gloria Lemieux, Mrs. Georgina Deeks and Mrs. Isabel Harrison, who, in addition to chauffeuring the seniors to luncheons, are also driver-helpers for the "Meals on Wheels". A very commendable effort by these persons.

Due to the expansion and responsibility of these two programs, Mrs. Graham asked the assistance of Mrs. Alberta Maitland for her area and thus Mrs. Maitland and Mrs. Bursey are now Directors on the Board of the Haliburton County Home Support Services. The credit for the expansion and the success of this operation must go direct to the above mentioned persons who so willingly gave their time, their efforts and the guiding expertise that was instrumental in eventually creating the formation of this local group.

Credit must also go to the present ten directors including the secretary, the treasurer and the chairperson and all the voluntary drivers and helpers who are presently operating as an independent group but with strong loyalties towards the H.C.H.S.S. who were the original sponsors.

From the experience gained in talking to other senior groups and attending various "workshop" meetings, several senior citizens, interested in creating seasonal pleasure such as lawn bowling in the summer and curling in the winter months have actively created both these facets in the Minden Area. Mr. Cy Heal founded the lawn bowling club and Mr. Don Sinclair is now the president and the driving force for this group.

Ed Pettinger, together with Honorary President Art Hodgkinson has formed the Minden Senior Curling Club. Both these endeavours are funded by the Department of National Health and Welfare. New Horizons group, and are progressing satisfactorily.

The Minden Lawn Bowling group has just terminated their summer activities whereas the Minden Senior Curling Club group will commence their activities in November 1981 through March 1982. The Minden Senior Curling Club has a full slate of senior directors and they anticipate having more than 100 ladies and men who will be either social or active members who will enjoy this winter sport.

Both these groups have been complimented for their work with the local senior citizens and by recent reports it would appear to be a successful operation brimming with enthusiasm. We are looking forward to continuing co-operation, good fellowship and enjoyment for the future months.

These local groups owe a special vote of thanks to Ms. Marlis Lindsay who attended many meetings and directed the various executives in following the proper channels leading to their formation.

The Minden-Carnarvon Highland Senior Services can always use more volunteers. Helpers are needed for deliveries in the meals on wheels program and to drive seniors to central points for wheels to meals. Others are needed to assist with friendly visits, and other programs planned by the organization.

Seniors wishing to take advantage of the services offered by the organization, or individuals who know of seniors who might benefit from the group's programs should contact any member for more information.

Society plans meeting

An open invitation has been extended to members of the Minden Agricultural Society and its supporters to attend a pot luck supper and general meeting. The gathering is planned for this Friday evening at the Minden Community centre.

The evening gets underway at 6:15 with a social hour. The supper is planned for 7:15 with the meeting to follow and dancing through to 1 a.m.

Those attending are asked to bring something to contribute to the meal. The society would also like to hear your ideas for future fall fairs.

Anglicans attend assembly

Clergy and lay delegates from St. Paul's, Minden; St. Stephen, Boshkung; St. Peter, Maple Lake and St. George's, Haliburton were among the 800 delegates attending the annual Synod of the Diocese of Toronto last week. They participated in the opening service at the Cathedral in Toronto as the Right Reverend Geoffrey Parke-Taylor was instituted as Suffragan Bishop of the Diocese on Thursday, September 24th.

In his charge to the delegates the Archbishop, the Most Reverend Lewis Garnsworthy, called upon them to exercise leadership in renewing a vision of mission for the church through the "Anglicans In Mission" programme. Noting that part of the programme is a fund raising effort in 1983 he said, "I am not blind to the society around us: interest rates, the cost of living; the seething anger in this country at the callousness of politicians who raise their own salaries in a day, yet cannot pass legislation in months to help Canadians."

There is so much happens each week at this place, we hardly take time to say table grace.

Unless of course, Mr. Brown is here. He says the blessing nice and clear.

Let's for a moment dwell on spiritual things. Come to the Chapel and hear the fine messages our ministers bring.

We who are nearing sunset years and have trouble changing gears look to brighter things above where all is peace and love.

Now let's look to a lighter vein and talk of those that entertain. Of all the ones come to this home, there is none better than Cooper and Owens.

With Cathy on the piano and Earl on the fiddle, it's "allemande left" all fall to the middle. Then there's our ladies, those hard working dames, who have a quilt set up in their nice quilting frames. They hope to raffle some fine winter's day. This is the time they will sure make it pay.

Then there's the ladies who bring in our lunch and they are always a real happy bunch.

This week it was the ladies from Kinmount United. Whatever they bring, we are always delighted.

Now its sing song time at Hyland Crest. We always have the very best.

This week with Fred Ballard on the organ, and Grace Coburn led the singing, when we get a lovely piece we know we set the rafters ringing.

There is lots more happens here at the Crest. I will try next week to tell you the rest.

I forgot to tell about the Robertson sisters at fun and fitness they do some real twisters.

Until next week.

World Food Day is October 16th and this was started by Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations on the same day in 1945; this was to better standards and conditions in many under-privileged countries and to see that hunger can be freed from its chains in many countries yet. Not everyone is as fortunate as Canadians to have such an abundance of food available to them.

This is a direct quote from a widow in our village, "You don't want to be left a widow in Haliburton County and expect any help, as you can't afford to live and you can't afford to die".

Days are gettin' shorter an' the air a keener snap;
Apples now are droppin' into Mother Nature's lap.
The mist at dusk is risin' over the valley, marsh an' fen
An' it's just as plain as sunshine, winter's comin' on again.

But the air is mighty peaceful an' the scene is good to see,
An' there's somethin' in October that stirs deep inside o' me;
An' I just can't help believin' in a God above us when Everythin' is ripe for harvest an' the frost is back again.

Hint of the Week

Ready-to-use upholstery cleaner - Shaving cream is one of the most useful upholstery cleaners for new stains and ordinary dirt. Make your own by mixing 1/2 cup mild detergent with 2 cups boiling water. Cool until it forms into jelly, then whip with a hand beater for good stiff foam.

Some things have to be put off many times before they slip your mind completely.

Thanksgiving is when millions of turkeys go to their final roasting place.

Kids Korner

I hope all you kids out there had a good holiday and enjoyed your turkey dinner with all the trimmings.

Number Song
by Elizabeth Madox Roberts
Sixteen pigeons flew over the spire
Of the church, and as they went higher and higher
They gathered in to be twelve, and ten,

And then they were seven, and then,
When I saw them last they were four -
Wings going and then nothing more.

If you were dying and you had only a dime, what would you buy?

A pack of lifesavers

Is it possible to stretch music so that it will last a little longer?

Yes, if you have a rubber band

If you were locked in a cemetery at night, how would you get out?

Use a skeleton key

What kind of song do you sing in a car?

A cartoon

Why did the chicken cross the road?

For fowl reasons

Bye for now. Take it easy. God bless till next time.
